DEDICATION

Mr. Jess Randol

In 1929, Mr. Jess Randol began the first of thirty-two years of devoted and rewarding teaching at South High School. He had received Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees in 1923 from the University of Nebraska and had taught for several years in Nebraska before coming to South. Beginning as a mathematics teacher, he turned to American history and economics in the thirties.

Mr. Randol has become a friend, counselor and dedicated instructor to hundreds of students who know him. Many South graduates remember him as the sponsor of the now inactive Rebel Club and the coach of a champion golf team.

On weekdays Mr. Randol is surrounded by maps and economics charts, lecture notes and textbooks. Tuesday nights he sponsors the International Relations Club, and other evenings he devotes to his daughter, Emmy, who will "graduate" with him in June. His weekends, however, are spent at the Randol wheat farm near Hereford, Colorado, on a tractor cultivating crops or relaxing in his rocker.

To you, Mr. Randol, for your devoted service to our school, your unfailing friendship and counsel, and for your continued efforts to educate and guide, we dedicate the 1962 JOHNNY REB.

*Behind the stone pillars,
Behind the ornate masonry and brickwork facade;
There lies the true South—animated, alive.*

*For the true South is not brick, concrete, and mortar,
 But life—excited, exuberant.
 A fast-moving football game,
 The shadowy beauty of a dance;
 The crush of students rushing to class
 The youthful bounce and energy of a cheerleader—
 This is the real South.*

A boy and girl,
 Happily smiling together on the lawn;
 A student and teacher,
 Intently conversing in the halls;
 A coach and his team,
 Desperately searching for that elusive, glittering pearl called Victory.
 This too is the living South.

*Chatting with the gang at the "Queen,"
Studying alone late at night,
Enjoying the stimulus of a club,
Or working with friends in the library
The animated South is embodied
In the bustling lives of active students.*

*Yes, South is dynamic, living, moving.
And when the proud gargoyles
and majestic tower
Have crumbled into dust,
When the teeming halls
Have faded from view;
South will live on
In the animation of a new age.*

REBEL ROUNDUP

Shan Burdick exuberantly urges the Rebels to victory at the rally preceding the Homecoming game.

Exuberant spirits and high hopes for the game-to-come filled the east parking lot before the Homecoming game with Jefferson. Rebel Roundup, the traditional fall blast-off to put homecoming spirit into orbit, resounded with "annexitis" and the throbbing beat of the school marching band. After gulping unbelievable quantities of doughnuts and Pepsi, a hopeful crowd followed bouncing cheerleaders in a spirited rally. With a sea of Rebel flags and purple shakers waving overhead, an impressive parade of Johnny Rebs marched en masse to the stadium thundering, "Go South!"

PEP CLUB TEA

Sophomore girls were welcomed to South by a Pep Club tea early in the fall. "Autumn Acquaintances," held the first month of school, provided an opportunity for the newcomers to renew old friendships and to make new ones. After being greeted by Rita Thompson, president of Pep Club, the girls were entertained with a talent program presented by performers from Grant, Merrill and Byers junior highs. The Pepsters then served refreshments of cookies and punch in the gym. A tradition at South, Sophomore Tea is always an important social event.

HOMECOMING DANCE

Gay laughter and sparkling music set the mood for the homecoming dance, "Split-T for Two." Bill Nikkel and the Skyliners filled the gyms with a rhythmic beat, while couples floated by or stood in friendly groups on the sidelines discussing the Homecoming game. The first big dance of the year, Homecoming, stirred high expectations and imaginative dreamings for the year's coming social events.

The syncopated rhythm of the Skyliners echoes throughout the gyms while couples dance under the dim lights.

SOPHOMORE PARTY

The class of '64 began their years at South with commendable Rebel spirit at the Sophomore party, "Outward Bound." Enlivened by the music of Jesse Romero, our newest Southerners showed their exuberance and enthusiasm for the novelty of high school life. Talented Rebs Sally Cawood and Harold Frost provided musical entertainment during the evening, and sophomore sponsors, Mrs. Hansen and Mr. Conklin, were guests of honor.

"THE MATCHMAKER"

An evening of hilarity was in store for all who purchased tickets for the first Senior Drama play of the year, "The Matchmaker." This rollicking comedy by Thornton Wilder was presented after many hours of hard work on the part of the players and the crews behind the scene. Under the expert leadership of Mrs. Nordstrom, the production was presented once for visiting drama clubs and once for play-minded Rebs. The thunderous applause following the final act attested to the success of the first production.

KEY KLUB KLOMP

A cafe, The Golden Key Inn, complete with entertainment, refreshments and a special mystery guest, was a welcome refuge for weary dancers at the Key Klub Klomp. While many relaxed at the Inn, others danced to the melodious music of Ron Gist, who filled the gyms with "twistable" tunes. An unusual and novel theme, the Golden Key Inn, helped to make the Key Klub Klomp a standout among the dances of the year.

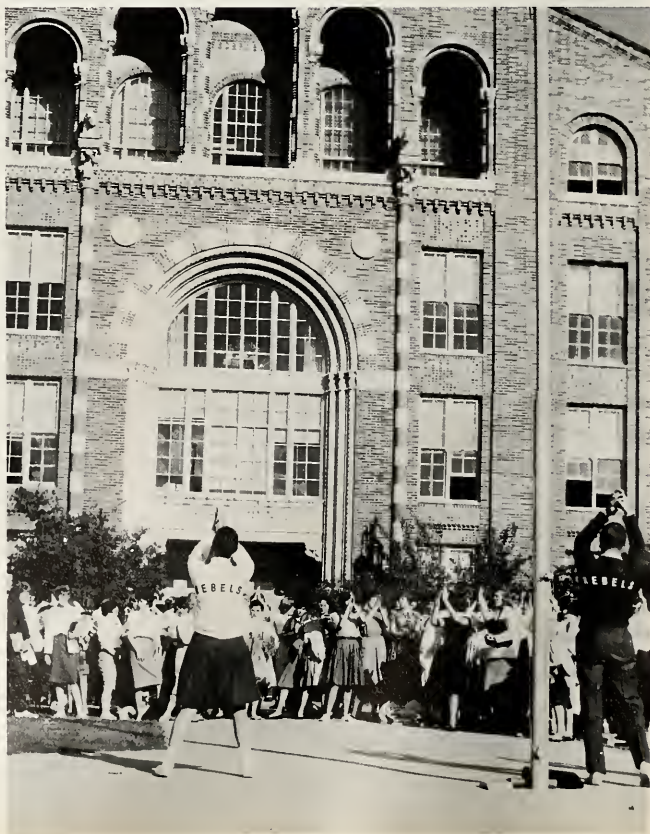

The Four Imposters, John Fowler, Rick Works, Randy Christman and Dean Guinn, entertain for guests at the Golden Key Inn.

RALLIES

Energetically leading Rebs in a cheer at a rally are Karla Magnuson, Shan Burdick, and Nancy McCracken.

Rallies held after school helped to inspire our teams to win and to promote attendance at sports events. Energetic cheerleaders and bouncy "pom pom" girls enlivened rallies as students yelled to their teams for "Victory." As the Pep Club screams faded away, all hands were raised in riotous applause when South's Number One Rebel Rouser, Dr. Anderson, appeared to give a pep talk. Hopes were high for the game to come as patriotic Southerners stood for the Alma Mater which ended each rally.

At the doors to the school, Southerners warm up to a season of Rebel sports.

ASSEMBLIES

Inspiring religious assemblies, lettermen's assemblies honoring athletic stars, and a thought-provoking all-school gathering to promote school spirit were among the programs presented to the student body throughout the year. The Thanksgiving and Easter celebrations were sponsored by Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y, and under the able direction of Mrs. Williams and Mr. Wells, the traditional Christmas music program was given for the student body and the public. The joint Confederate-Red Cross assembly for the Santa Claus Shop proved its successful appeal as Rebs filled and refilled the toy hut in the main hall. Among the speakers at various assemblies throughout the year were Mr. Earl Reum, Director of Student Activities, and our own Mr. Harold Keables, who gave a talk on school spirit at an assembly for that purpose presented by Student Council. Special lettermen's assemblies were held to honor athletes and their coaches, and often Dr. Anderson took these opportunities to present academic awards.

A march to honor the Confederate flag and the South brings a school spirit assembly to an impressive close.

" 'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the pad . . ." Angelin Douvas tells of Christmas for underprivileged children as Annette Flory, Paige Lyda, and Judy Reed listen thoughtfully at the Santa Claus Shop assembly.

"DOUBLE DOOR"

Mystery and suspense set the mood as the Senior Drama Class presented the melodrama "Double Door." The able acting of Jane Sloan, Doug Puckett, Gail Matson and Shari Smith, who played leading roles, and the directing of Mrs. Nordstrom transformed the written words into a suspenseful drama. As the plot unfolded, tension mounted and the audience became intensely involved in the situations. The curtains closed on the last act and thunderous applause indicated that the hard work which went into the production was worth all efforts of the participants.

Humorous Valentine corsages are worn in unorthodox places at Cupid's Beau.

Paper hearts and red streamers decorated the Thomas Jefferson gym while carrot and radish corsages decorated boys' jackets at "Cupid's Beau," the traditional girl-ask-boy Valentine dance. Southern Belles had a chance to treat their favorite Reb to this dance, which was sponsored jointly by the TJ and South Junior Red Cross Chapters. Music provided by the Hilltoppers filled the spacious gym while couples glided about the dance floor or sat at the sidelines and talked. The magic of the evening was brought to a close as the last dance was played, and dancers drifted into cool, starlit February air.

"Yes? Yes!" says Linda Morse in a tense scene from the play "Double Door."

CAREER DAY

Ron Gist and his band filled the South gym with a swinging beat at the annual "S" Club dance, "Athlete's Feat," and Southern couples glided across dance floors canopied by blue and black decorations. A refuge for weary feet and thirsty throats was provided in the balcony, and many dancers took advantage of the tables and chairs to rest and to talk.

What would "Athlete's Feat" be without a colorful backdrop?

To help students learn about the careers in which they are interested is the goal of South's Annual Career Day. Under the able direction of Mr. Bonger, Rebs visited with members of various professions and with job holders of all kinds. Through the efforts of the Pep Club, the day was organized and speakers felt at ease. Sophomores, juniors and seniors alike agreed that Career Day was helpful in choosing a vocation and a practical goal.

Mr. Bonger shows interested students how to sign up for Career Day sessions.

ALL-SCHOOL SHOW

Kathy Mitts executes a difficult move in her acrobatic number in "South Terrific."

"'South Terrific?' Terrific!" The curtains parted, showing South Rampart Street, the senior dance line appeared kicking to the strains of "Mimi," and "South Terrific" had begun. Some talented Rebs sang and danced and others demonstrated remarkable ability on musical instruments as the show progressed from Rampart Street to the South Pacific and to our own "Southern Customs." "The Hawaiian War Chant" and an authentic hula dance set the mood for the South Pacific scenes while dance lines to "Dixie" and "Fascinatin' Rhythm" showed the Southern Customs hospitality of Southern Belles. Patriotically, all costumes in the final act were of purple and white, and as the curtains closed the audience demonstrated an exuberant enthusiasm.

Randy Christman, John Fowler, Dean Guinn and Rick Works blend their voices in an old English ballad.

The Rebelettes practice precision kicks at a rehearsal for "South Terrific."

Paul Conly entertains with an American folk song.

Cindy Hendee accents Linda Gault's eyes with careful strokes of her pencil.

Cecily Morgan adjusts Rick Vafeades' tie before his entrance onstage.

MUSIC WEEK

Mr. Goff, Mr. Wells and Mrs. Williams of our music department spent many hours of work in preparation for the spring music programs. Both a vocal and an instrumental concert were presented in recognition of Music Week. The excellence of our music department and the talent of our own Rebs was demonstrated at these programs, and fellow students listened with pride as special concerts were presented.

Highlight of the Music Week program is the band's performance of a Sousa march.

Directed by Mrs. Williams, Girls' Ensemble performs in the Music Week spring concert.

FASHION SHOW

The annual Spring Fashion Show was presented by Pep Club for fashion-minded Rebelettes and their mothers. Senior pepsters modeled lovely creations from a local department store and following the presentation of the fashions, refreshments of cookies and punch were served. All who attended agreed that chairman Dorothy Puckett had done a remarkable organizational job and that the program would be remembered as one thoroughly enjoyed.

CLASS DAY AND GRADUATION

Senior Sally Harper looks forward to graduation as she is measured for a cap and gown.

Highlighted by an impressive assembly at school and a delicious luncheon at the Continental Denver, Senior Class Day was only one of the important events connected with graduation. Another unforgettable part of the final year of high school was the senior play, a rollicking comedy, presented for the Class of '62 by talented sophomores and juniors. The graduation ceremony itself, held at the D.U. Arena, was the most important of all. Seniors in purple and white robes sat listening to their classmates' speeches, while junior escorts in aqua dresses, provided colorful contrast.

A junior escort is measured for the dress she will wear in the graduation ceremony.

The Continental Denver provided climatic setting and atmosphere for the luncheon of Senior Class Day.

SENIOR ATTENDANTS

Dancing in the ballroom at the glamorous Denver Hilton Hotel, junior and senior couples experienced an "Evening in Ecstasy" at the first annual Junior-Senior Prom. A change from the traditional separate proms resulted in a beautiful evening highlighted by the crowning of a senior queen and a junior princess. The sparkling music of Dean Bushnell filled the room, and soft lights glistened as the classes of '62 and '63 attended a prom to be remembered.

JUNIOR ATTENDANTS

To be a queen is often a little girl's fondest dream. For one who has become a young lady, this dream became a reality when she was crowned to reign over the Junior-Senior Prom. Little girls believe in magic, but the candidate for the Prom in high school knows that becoming a queen requires a good record and a great deal of social poise. First of all, she must make out an application requiring her parents' signature and the recommendations of some of her teachers. Each applicant for queen must be checked by the Dean for grades and truancies, and entered in the preliminary voting. Even then she faces further processes of selection, this time by the students who cast the deciding votes. After the suspense and uncertainty of the election, however, the time when a sparkling crown is placed on a radiant head is indeed a magic moment.

Filled with activity and excitement, this year's Color Day included a special assembly at school and the annual All-City track meet. A space theme was used for the evening talent program, which ended traditionally with the crowning of the winning class queen who reigned over the dancing that followed. The Hilltoppers and the Continentals provided gay music, while couples danced under purple and white crepe decorations at "Moon River." The last dance of the year, Color Day is often called "the most wonderful" and "the most nostalgic."

Pegged as a dark horse the first of the year, South's Rebels lacked the offensive consistency to be a real title contender. In losing to bitter rivals Washington, Jefferson, and East, they finished fifth in the league. The Rebs showed flashes of brilliance but could not show them often enough to beat tougher teams. In losing a close game to league champion East, South made its season's most determined effort.

The transition from a single-wing to a "T" formation offensive proved costly to the team.

But most indications point to a fine season next year. The squad showed good over-all depth and was particularly hard-nosed defensively, but jelling solidly into an offensive unit took over half the season. By that time East and Jefferson had destroyed any South hopes for the championship. The graduation of players Ron Tracey, Don Laman and Bob Bishop will hurt, particularly in the line, but some flashy backfield men could make next year South's year.

SOPHOMORES AND JUNIORS

Both the sophomore and junior football teams fielded several players who should prove valuable in future varsity competition. Although the Sophomores finished in the cellar this year, they showed good potential and great spirit. The Juniors had a very successful season, and with some varsity experience under their belts are set to fill the positions left open by graduating seniors.

Under the guidance of Coach Frank Mielenz, South's cross country team finished fifth in City and eleventh in State. The squad seemed to experience a let-down after some good pre-season performances, but in the state meet finished creditably against the toughest competitors in Colorado. The steadiest performances of the year were given by Don Chippendale, John Fowler, Dean Turner, Dave Eldridge and Dennis Cirillo. If some promising underclassmen come through as expected, Rebel harriers should enjoy increasingly successful seasons.

South's roundballers lacked the experience to be a contender in this year's title race and lost several close games to place next to the cellar. While the Rebels never were close to the top of the heap, however, they helped to decide who was tops by knocking off Jefferson and West in second round play. Outstanding junior players, especially big Joe Wheeler, showed great potential. Seniors Ron Tracey, John Duran and Ron Turnage gave good performances to make South's rebuilding year creditable.

Sophomore and junior players both had seasons that point toward a winning year in 1963. The Juniors shot their way to the championship while the Sophomores finished in the middle of their title race. With several returning lettermen, a good jay-vee squad and a young but potentially good sophomore team, it looks as if South should have a potent squad next year.

Under the guidance of Coach Conklin, Rebel grapplers had a fine dual meet season and represented South well until the all-important City Tournament. After ruining an otherwise perfect dual meet record of the North Vikings with a 20-20 tie one week before the tourney, the wrestlers seemed primed for a run at the championship. Following a good first round in the tournament, South lost eight close semi-final matches and with them, the city championship. Only heavyweight Bob Wise qualified for State, and he went on to take fourth in the State Tournament marathon. A bad let-down in the consolation matches left South in sixth place, although they had finished third in dual meets. One day does not make a season, however, and Southern matmen can be proud of a creditable year. A potent "B" team and nine returning lettermen hope to make amends against next year's competition.

SWIMMING

An overanxious swimmer leaves his platform a split-second too early.

South's tankers, unlike the wrestlers, had a mediocre dual meet season and proved a real powerhouse in tournament competition. Lack of depth hurt tremendously, as it was not unusual to see a Bill Gage or Ed McCullough take first place with a record-breaking performance, and then to watch helplessly as the opposition paddled slowly in with some cheap place points. This was especially evident in the City Tournament, where Washington eked out a close victory. Coach Crist had his boys primed for the state meet, however, and it was not much of a contest as Chuck Riddell, Rod Downing, and Woody Fagerston, together with Gage and McCullough, performed brilliantly to bring South the state swimming crown.

Under new coach James Pagliasotti, South's baseball team looked forward to one of the tightest title races in years. Rebel chances seemed good, but considerable effort was necessary to continue South's domination of years past. Bill Hennigar, Reed Sundine, Ron Tracey and Ken Sevcik led the squad in their battle for city and state crowns. South easily won its first three non-league games and performed well throughout the year.

DR. WILLIAM H. ANDERSON

Principal

Dr. Anderson has injected a great deal of personal enthusiasm in supporting South's extra-curricular activities. His live spirit and outstanding ability to win student friends has enabled him to lead the school efficiently. His democratic manner of conducting school affairs and willingness to place responsibility in the hands of the student body have made him well-deserving of the title "Number One Rebel Rouser."

School administration is led by the principal, assistant principal, dean and co-ordinator. Although much of their time is occupied with personal counseling and student discipline, they expend an equal effort in administrative duties. All candidate applications for class officers and queens pass through the hands of the dean for her approval. She also works with Student Council and P.T.A. in organizing and planning activities. The assistant principal determines procedures for special drills and air raids and decides each semester's schedule of classes. The work of the counseling heads is programmed and directed by the co-ordinator to provide fine individualized assistance.

Serving teachers, students and parents is the task of the administrative department. Through the work of the office staff, weekly bulletins are prepared, telephone messages relayed and student records filed and kept current. The school nurse keeps the physical examination and vaccination records in addition to rendering health services. Before and after school and during class, the librarians are on hand to assist students in selecting materials and in finding the books they may need. The treasurer works with the club and class treasurers in many currency transactions. Maintaining a regular flow in the business affairs of South is the responsibility of these administrative staffs.

After entering South each student becomes well acquainted with the counseling department. As a sophomore he is assigned a counseling teacher for guidance in planning studies during his three years. Together they select courses that will most benefit his future. The vocational counselor may also aid interested students in finding full or part-time employment. From the College Counseling Office college applicants may obtain information and bulletins concerning scholarships, admission requirements and various scholastic tests. College counselors also arrange student conferences with representatives from colleges and universities throughout the country.

The English department at South High School recognizes the ever-increasing importance of communication in a world of complexity. To provide the student with a knowledge of the structure and standards of the English language is one of their goals. Through composition and creative writing courses, the individual develops proficiency in expressing himself. Journalism classes provide the experience of publishing a newspaper, while annual staff gives opportunity for creating a yearbook. From study of literature the pupil becomes familiar with the great books and writings of the world. The speech and drama classes teach poise and grace for speaking in front of a group. In addition, the capable student may take college level English during his senior year.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

As a result of the courses offered by the social science department, the student gains an awareness of the world and its people. A familiarity with past events is provided in American History, American Backgrounds, Western History, and Modern Europe, while an understanding of present happenings is obtained through classes in economics, American government and current affairs. By studying psychology and sociology the pupil learns to comprehend the individual and society. In addition the student acquires a recognition of his own role as a citizen in modern society and a knowledge of the basic ideals of Man.

All levels of ability and many diversified interests are provided for in the mathematics program. In the wide range of courses from basic math to mathematical analysis, students may acquire the fundamentals, learn practical everyday use of number concepts, or begin the more difficult algebra—geometry sequence in preparation for college. Business arithmetic classes are offered for those students intending to enter the business world. Exceptionally able students are challenged in the accelerated math program. By taking advanced algebra, geometry and trigonometry during their sophomore and junior years, these students have their final year free to study college math.

Industrial arts courses provide an understanding of industrial techniques as well as a chance to develop manual skills. Through the metal and wood shops a student becomes familiar with tools and learns to use them effectively. He experiments with many materials and completes projects that are both useful and attractive. Designing, sketching and lettering are work areas included in the mechanical drawing classes which enable young draftsmen to master the language of the industrialist. In these activities, those planning future careers as carpenters, architects and engineers have an opportunity for good training.

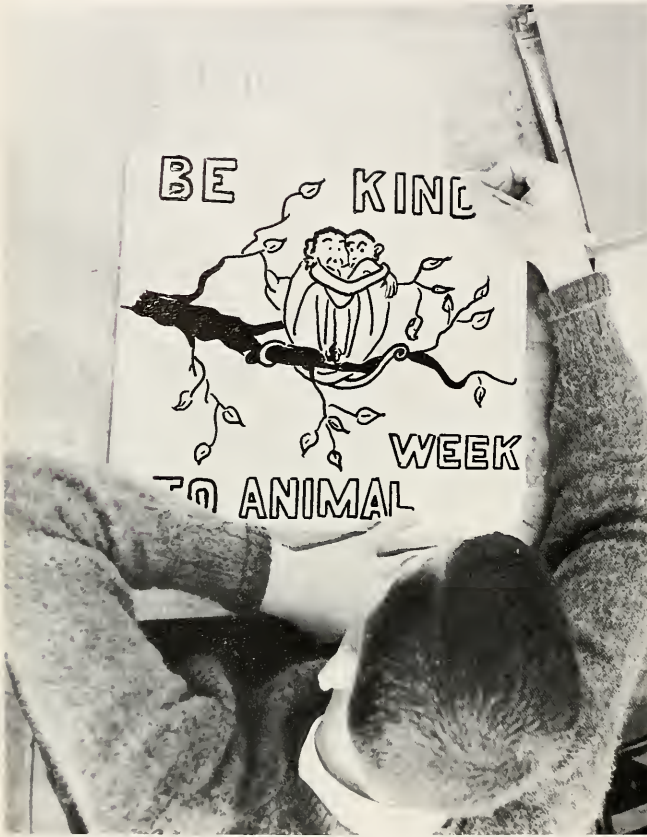

Young craftsmen such as Ken Brown in the woodshop classes have the opportunity to produce many articles.

A course in mechanical drawing is good preparation for a future engineer such as Elmer Canady.

Detecting talent in young artists and encouraging its development are aims of the teachers in the art department. The art courses are designed for a wide range of interests. The drawing and painting sequences, commercial art classes and advanced art courses give the individual opportunity to express himself originally and creatively. Many students who like working with their hands take the ceramic and sculpturing classes, while others prefer mosaic work and copper enameling. For those interested in design there are studies in fashion and interior design. The art fundamentals learned at South may be used in future work and for a lifetime after graduation.

Many of the fine art pieces are chosen for display in the second floor main hall so that all students and faculty members may enjoy them.

Appreciation of music and the opportunity to express natural talent are the main considerations of the vocal and instrumental music programs. Vocalists and instrumentalists gain experience through the training courses of beginning bands and choirs. Later, skilled students in vocal music advance to Concert Choir, while those who have instrumental talent participate in Concert Band or Concert Orchestra. Much of the entertainment at programs and assemblies throughout the school year is provided by these musicians. The concert groups are also in demand for church and community performances. In contrast to the classes which develop musical skills, music history and musical theory provide a firm foundation for advanced study.

HOME ECONOMICS

The homemakers of tomorrow receive practical training in sewing, cooking and home management classes at South. The clothing students acquire basic sewing skills and then advance to more difficult classes in which they design and make their own garments. To plan, prepare and serve well-balanced meals are aims of the foods classes. Special emphasis is placed on planning meals which are both attractive and high in nutritive value. Learning to effectively decorate with smart furnishings and colorful design is a large part of the home management courses. Through these experiences girls may begin to plan for their future homes.

The kitchen staff and custodians perform a very necessary function at South. The task of keeping South a clean and orderly school is delegated to the custodians. As a result of their efforts in running the elevator, repairing damaged and faulty equipment, and performing many other apparently inconsequential duties, South's building is kept in good condition.

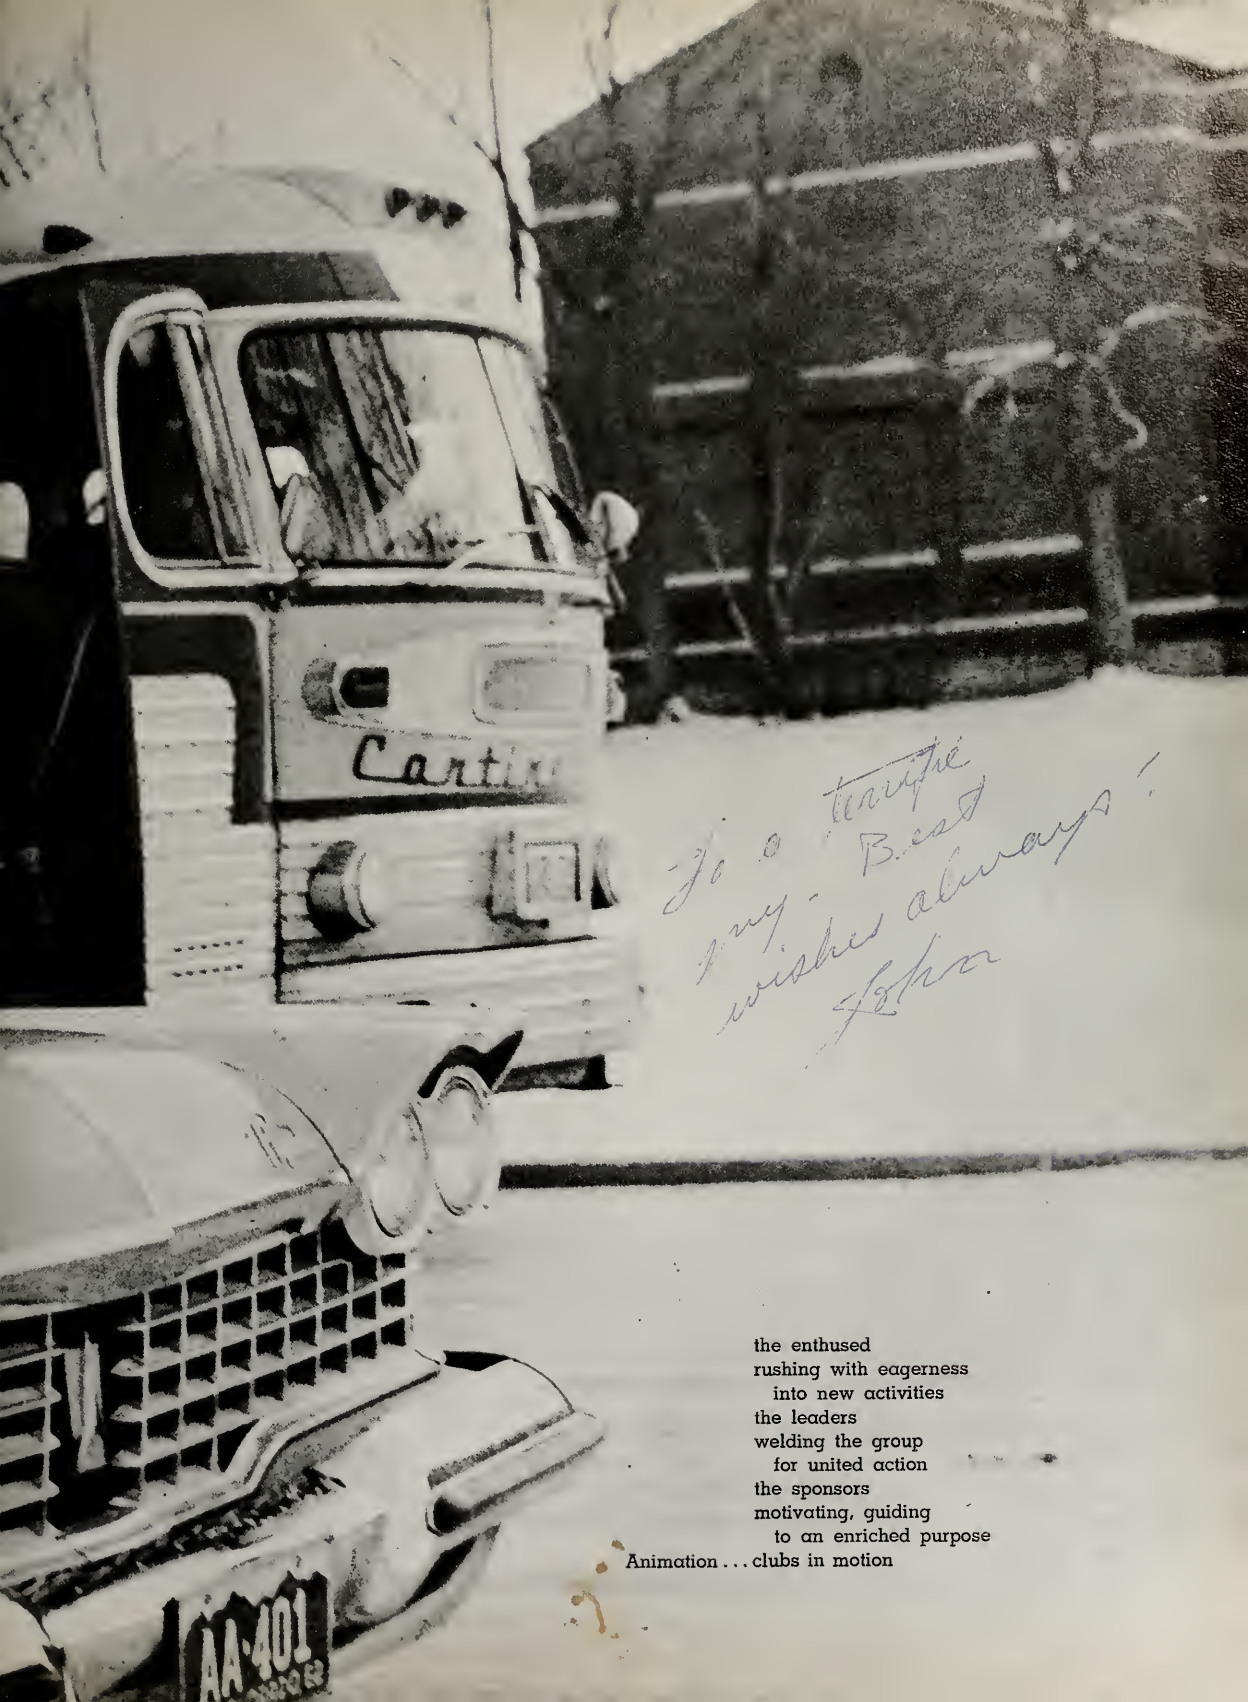

Preparing nutritious and well-balanced meals for the hungry students and faculty members is the job of the kitchen staff. Each morning workers in the kitchen devote their time to preparing the delicious food that South enjoys each day. After the busy lunch hours are over, they must clean up and make plans for the next day.

Working closely with Dr. Anderson, our student council, the governing body of South High School, made the final decisions on many vital school issues. When the traditional meetings in South's tower had to be changed because of the fire hazard, the members faced the problems of the year with no less determination and enthusiasm. Sale of pep cards, conducting the P.T.A. membership drive, responsibility for elections of class officers and cheerleaders, and the inauguration assembly were a few of their activities. This year for the first time students could attend an open meeting of Student Council to see how the workings of school government were handled. The council, with the cooperation of the faculty, continued to hold up the standards of South High and to keep operation smooth and without conflict.

In addition to the regular work of planning after-school meetings and preventing conflicts between the clubs, an important activity of the council this year was recognizing a new club at South, Dixieland Diplomats. Every club at South sends a representative to I.C.C., and any project which affects the student body must be presented to the council and voted upon. Members worked to make the clubs of South run without conflict with each other and in this way helped to build the unity and school spirit of South.

Deadline 1962. The scene: The mysterious black-and-white basement of Emmy Lu Randol. A boy walks by munching an apple. Shrieks of laughter can be heard coming from a room marked "Photographers." A student is frantically searching through the candid shots for the one that just isn't there. Another is having a momentous discussion with Mr. Houghton about a comma. This is a weekend session of members of the staff trying to meet one of the many dreaded deadlines.

The work of meeting deadlines was not limited to weekends but filled early morning and late night sessions as well as one period a day in Room 166. After deciding on the theme, the staff members worked with a hectic determination selling photo coupons and, in November, the 1962 Johnny Reb. In the spring all, from the Editor down to the smallest writer, heaved a sigh of welcome relief when the completed yearbook had been sent to the publisher.

Since selection in South's Scholastic Society, Triple S, is a great honor among the South Rebels, members wore their gold pins with pride throughout the year. Any junior or senior with five "A's" in academic subjects and no "C's" in any subject as a semester grade is automatically on the club's membership list. Triple S members must retain their grade averages or they will be dropped from the club at the end of the school year. Meetings, which are not scheduled on a regular basis, usually include information on scholarships and college application.

Mr. Carr supervises election of officers for Triple S.

Quill and Scroll, an organization composed of deserving members of the Johnny Reb and Confederate Staffs, contributed to the outstanding achievements of South High School in journalism and its allied fields.

Through such benefits of membership as the Quill and Scroll magazine, members found greater opportunities for improving their journalistic talents and enjoyed the prestige of an international honorary organization.

Mr. Bassett discusses the possibilities of future projects with members of Quill and Scroll.

Members of Hi-Y and Junior Red Cross make final preparations before leaving to give a party at the Lincoln Housing Project.

Guided by the sincere desire to serve their fellow men at community and international levels, members of Junior Red Cross eagerly supported the club's many service projects throughout the year. The presentation of variety shows at Fitzsimon's and the Veterans' Administration Hospital brought an enjoyable change of pace to the sometimes monotonous world of bed-ridden patients.

Memorable events during the year included the successful Santa Claus Shop Drive and the ever-popular Cupid's Beau Dance in February. One of the important lessons learned by the group was that joy and satisfaction can be found in generous giving of time and energy to those less fortunate.

DIXIELAND DIPLOMATS

Kaye Ashton conducts a short business meeting after one of the breakfasts sponsored by the club.

Walking down the halls of South early one Wednesday morning, a student saw a group of girls quietly listening to a speaker in the auditorium. "It's the Dixieland Diplomats," he thought to himself as he went on to his locker. A new club at South this year, Dixieland Diplomats became well-known to all South Rebels. Girls who assisted teachers or had an interest in service work were welcome to join. Members met on alternating Wednesdays and often had early morning breakfasts in the lunchroom at South. In one of their numerous service projects, each girl had little sisters among the new sophomore girls and helped them to become better acquainted with South High.

TRI-HI-Y

Girls crowd around the serving table at their fall "get-acquainted" Pot Luck.

Tri-Hi-Y, a Christian girls' service club associated with the National Hi-Y Council, is a familiar club at South. Any girl with a 2.5 grade average, no "E's" as a semester mark in an academic subject, and no trancies may join. Service activities include the annual Christmas tree sale, collection of food for a Thanksgiving basket, and other projects serving the city of Denver as well as South High. Students are impressed with the reverence of Tri-Hi-Y's assembly near Easter each year.

The most interesting activity of the year is participation in the Youth and Government Program. Students from high schools in Colorado meet at the state capitol in April and go through a mock legislative session. This gives the girls an insight into the working of government, and helps, as all their activities do, to "create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of Christian character."

The boys of Hi-Y stand high in the ranks of achievers among the students of South High. Hi-Y, a boys' service club, is an organization where boys learn the comradeship of Christian character and strive to accent this quality in the student body. In their service capacity they perform various charitable activities for the Denver area. In the spring the students participate with Tri-Hi-Y in "Youth in Government," an activity which expands their knowledge of the workings of the city government through actual participation in its functions.

Ray Oliver addresses the assembled members of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y at their formal initiation.

Members of Hi-Y engage in inter-club competition with other high schools.

KEY CLUB

Key Club, the high school division of Kiwanis International, is known for its active participation in school activities and for service in other areas. In addition to Key Club's dance, the Key Klub Klomp, members tirelessly operated a refreshment stand at other school dances. The boys shared an interesting experience on Thanksgiving Day when they entertained visitors from California, a Little League football team. One of the highlights of the year was the presentation of a program at a regular meeting of the Denver Kiwanis Club in October. Although one of the chief aims of the club is the promotion of high ideals of citizenship and service, the boys long remember all the fun they had and the friendships they made in Key Club.

White mums with purple ribbons, sold as Homecoming corsages by F.T.A. members, helped the Future Teachers' scholarship fund. After acceptance of his application, any student with an interest in this vocation could further, through F.T.A., his knowledge of good educational practices, of the qualities of inspirational teaching, and of the opportunities open to future teachers. The aspiring teachers helped as substitutes in the absence of regular staff members and assisted by tutoring students in need of help. Activities were varied, with several meetings including guest speakers who contributed to the desire of members to keep high the aims and standards of Future Teachers of America.

SENATE CLUB

Senate Club members listen attentively as Jean Beverstock discusses American moral decadence.

The dual aim of Senate Club was to stimulate the intellectual and social faculties of its participants and at the same time to develop their self-confidence and speaking ability. Meetings usually featured a speech delivered by a member, followed by an enthusiastic and stimulating discussion of the topic presented.

This year, the areas of discussion ranged from a comparison of schools in Europe and America to the crisis in Berlin. Another interesting meeting involved the pros and cons of non-sponsored organizations. All participants found that the experience gained and the ideas shared in this lively, congenial atmosphere were worth the effort put into the club.

An interest in foreign affairs prompted the enthusiasm of the students at South for I.R.C. Discussions about current problems of today's world, conferences about foreign affairs, and talks given by guest speakers increased the interest of the members in foreign policy. Participants were selected by consideration of teacher recommendation and the quality of a short article written by the prospective member about his desire to join this club. Students talked of the problems facing the American youth of today, and though solutions were not permanent, they helped the members to understand twentieth century world conditions.

The Young Republicans of South High upheld that side of the lively and intense conflict between the two main political parties of the United States. In implementing the purpose of the club, which is to create interest in politics throughout the school, the Young Republicans held heated discussions about current elections and the policies and ideals of the Republican party. Helping at the Republican Headquarters and attending a legislative session enriched their knowledge of governmental procedures. Members spent the year striving to increase support for the party whose ideas they felt would influence our government to operate efficiently.

DEBATE CLUB

Debate club members informally discuss this year's debate topic which involves the benefits of federal aid to education.

After new members were admitted to try-outs in the fall, South's chapter of the National Forensic League became involved in the whirlwind of speech meets, debates and workshops that takes place each year.

The many speech opportunities available, such as dramatic interpretation, debate and extemporaneous speaking, enabled each person to participate in his particular area of interest. Especially notable events were the district and state speech meets in March and the Governor Shafroth extemporaneous speaking contest. The four student congresses held during the year provided an excellent opportunity to improve parliamentary skills and training for effective participation in public meetings and in legislative bodies.

FOLIO LEAVES

Rock Ley, president of Folio Leaves, reads one of the stories submitted by members.

The major aim of Folio Leaves this year was to enliven the spirit of the literary club. An initiation and party were given for new members, who were accepted upon judgement of their manuscripts. During the meetings the prospective writers read and discussed short stories, poems, essays and articles. "The Continued Story," with chapters furnished by each member, provided hilarious entertainment for the group. Other activities included keen competition for the best Christmas story, and hard work on scripts and programs for Color Day. During May, signs placed throughout the school advertised the sale of Towers, the magazine of short stories, poems and essays compiled by the members of the club.

NATIONAL THESPIANS

Members of National Thespians use their talents to enliven one of their semi-weekly meetings.

Persons interested in the theatre with the necessary ten points for membership in National Thespians found that the club provided an educational and stimulating experience in the field of drama. At the meetings on alternate Thursdays, informative discussions about dramatic techniques and current theatrical productions in Denver took place.

Members were also urged to continue earning points by participating on backstage crews, acting in plays, or by directing or ushering. This national honorary society helped keep interest in the theater alive among its active thespians.

SOUTHERN MASQUERADERS

Drama club members hasten to arrange props before the curtain rises on the first act of the "Matchmakers."

Drama club members attempted this year to create more interest in the dramatic arts, especially in the theater and dramatic literature. All persons who showed a desire to join the club and who had earned four points in theater activities were welcomed into membership.

Skits, pantomimes, and a wide variety of individual acts were presented at the semi-weekly meetings. Traditional activities such as Junior Night, initiations and the memory books provided all the members with pleasant recollection. In addition to working on crews for the Senior Drama Class plays, the thespians presented their own play in the spring and also entered a play in the State Drama Festival at Abraham Lincoln High.

Sweet melodious organ notes were heard coming from the high tower of South by students walking to school on crisp Christmas season mornings. Members of Organ Guild, accepted into the club if they had musical talent on the piano or organ, also played before and after numerous assemblies during the year. "Villain!" shrieks Madame Combs with appropriate gestures as she conducts one of her lively and dramatic French Club sessions.

France—its heritage, customs, and language—became vividly alive to students enrolled in French Club this year. The main goal of the group, which met daily, was to master the essentials of grammar necessary for speaking French fluently.

The members presented four programs during the year, which were attended by special guests, including mothers and school administrators. A newspaper entitled "La Commere" was distributed monthly to less advanced students. In all these activities, French customs and celebrations were made real.

Warren Daniels and Barbara Ernst strive to improve their pronunciation of the Spanish language with the aid of a tape recorder.

This year students who enrolled in South's four Spanish clubs concentrated on developing their ability to speak the language fluently, to write it correctly, and to read it easily with good comprehension. In order to achieve this goal, members worked for a period each day under the able supervision of Miss Evans, Mr. Owen, or Mrs. O'Connor. Numerous programs provided knowledge of Spanish-speaking countries, and their customs and manners of living. Parties, Spanish-style, also added to the zest and enthusiasm of participants.

To encourage further study of modern math by interested students, to make available instruction in use of the slide rule, and to promote participation in nationwide math talent contests were the primary objectives of South's Math Club this year.

At their after-school meetings on alternate Tuesdays, members enjoyed a wide variety of programs, which included noted speakers on modern mathematical developments, and field trips to study computers and the use of mathematics in industry. SCIENCE CLUB

Through the Science Club, persons interested in exploring the vast new areas of science were given an opportunity to do so. Qualified speakers and scientists shed light on topics ranging from the structure of matter to the mysteries of radiation. Numerous field trips to highly specialized industrial laboratories helped the students acquire first-hand knowledge of the fascinating world of science.

After a year of preparation and hard work, the eagerly anticipated Science Fair was presented. Many members entered projects, with high hopes of winning one of the many available awards.

PRE-MED CLUB

Pre-Med Club members view the equipment used by an ophthalmologist in his care of eyes.

Students at South with an interest in professions in the medical field were welcome to bring their ideas and questions to the Pre-Med Club. Members increased their knowledge of medicine while taking excursions to medical institutions. They explored the opportunities present in a career of medicine when guest speakers, experts in their specialized fields, directed informative discussions and gave helpful demonstrations. Participants learned much about vocations which they were considering, while meeting with students who shared common interests and goals.

DISTRIBUTIVE EDUCATION CLUBS OF AMERICA

Jack Pickett, in his capacity as assistant manager of the Mayan Theater, finds that actual job experience is an invaluable aid to prospective businessmen.

Following the belief that experience is the best teacher, the Distributive Education Clubs of America strive to provide participation in actual working experience as well as "class-room knowledge." Students in South's chapter of this national organization met every morning as a class to learn about salesmanship, retail merchandising, and other important aspects of the business world. Members were then encouraged to seek employment and to put their newly-acquired skills into actual practice. Serious-minded seniors who enrolled in this national organization felt that the practical experience gained in working with other people in a business situation was invaluable in preparing them for employment after graduation.

SKI CLUB

High on the ski trails of Loveland, South skiers skimmed over the glistening snow, while on the practice slopes other Rebels practiced snow plows under the direction of Ski Club's sponsor, Mr. Meech. From experts to beginners, members of South High's Zwoa Brett invaded the slopes on Sundays for a day of fun and active sport. The club dues were increased this year in order to accept only members who were sincerely interested in signing up each week for the week-end ski trips. As a result, participants rejuvenated this active and enthusiastic club in one of America's favorite winter sports.

Competitive bowling events with their fellow leaguers, with members of South's Boy's Bowling Club and with students of other schools were important activities of the girl bowlers this year. These pin busters bowled for two hours each week at Colorado Bowl. An interest in improving bowling techniques and a desire to foster better sportsmanship encouraged all participants. In the spring, presentation of a trophy to bowlers with the greatest achievement provided incentive that encouraged every girl to try for the highest score.

The thunder of balls and pins echoed through Celebrity Lanes from four to six on Tuesday afternoons when the Boy Bowlers of South High met to develop their bowling skills. Matches with other leagues, tournaments centered in the city, and state competition challenged the talents and enthusiasm of all the members. In addition to their diligent work for better scores and anxious waiting for the results of stiff league competition, there was plenty of active fun that made the leaguers better friends and better bowlers.

The fans of roller skating at South were given the opportunity to skate once a week with fellow students for reduced rates at a local rink. In the fall an organizational meeting created an interest among new students. After election of officers, informal meetings were held at Skateland each Wednesday night. Competition for a trophy, awarded at the end of the school year, made perfecting the skills of roller skating full of excitement and fun.

"S" CLUB

"S" club members intently follow the order of business at one of their weekly meetings.

South's lettermen worked hard this year to raise school spirit and to encourage high standards of leadership, sportsmanship and citizenship among all Rebels.

Helping with the Santa Claus toy drive, presenting the "S" Club dance, and giving a party for the Pep Club highlighted the year's activities. As a continuing service to their fellow students, members sponsored boys new to South and helped them to become an integral part of school life.

As the curtain slowly rose and the air filled with a hushed silence, the beautiful stage, heightened by a colorful backdrop, held the audience in a momentary trance. As the show progressed, the background scenes painted on cardboard took on a clear meaning because they followed the theme of the performance. The pictures were created by the members of stage crew who spent one period a day backstage working and planning for the dramatic entertainment of South High students. Because of the expert handling of props and timing by the backstage workers, the plays ran smoothly. Students who participated in the stage crew became experienced in the problems involved in stage entertainment or management of assemblies. Appreciation for these behind-the-scene workers was shown by all students, who obviously enjoyed the programs they presented.

BACH CHOIR

Choral entertainment at numerous civic functions throughout Denver and at school assemblies kept the members of Bach Choir busily enlarging their repertoire and rehearsing to maintain their excellent standards. Bach Choir, which is traditionally a steppingstone to Concert Choir, provides the experience and training necessary for later membership in that organization. As a second choral organization, it enables more students at South to enjoy the opportunities of membership in a first-class choir.

Figures in stunning blue robes marched quietly to the risers on stage and moved quickly into formation. As the lights of the house dimmed, the spotlight brightened to encircle the faces of the smiling girls in Girls' Ensemble. The silence of the audience awaited the direction of Mrs. Williams, and then melodious voices filled the auditorium.

The Ensemble performed for several assemblies during the school year and sang request performances for numerous organizations outside of school. The girls worked hard to improve their vocal abilities, and their success was demonstrated by the fine appreciation they found in their audiences everywhere.

The reputation of South's Concert Choir was not confined within the walls of South High. Their fame for beautiful performances spread throughout the city. Competition to achieve membership in the choir was keen, and after acceptance participants worked hard in numerous extra rehearsals and performances. TRAINING CORPS

Basically a class in the Reserve Officer Training Corps teaches a young man the organization of the United States Army. In the program a cadet is taught the basic fundamentals of the Army—military tactics, use of the rifle, and map and compass reading. These basic skills which are learned by R. O. T. C. cadets must be known by all Army personnel. When a cadet has proven himself worthy for leadership and has acquired sufficient training, he can become a commissioned cadet officer in the R. O. T. C. As a commissioned officer, the cadet has the responsibility of leading and training cadets under him.

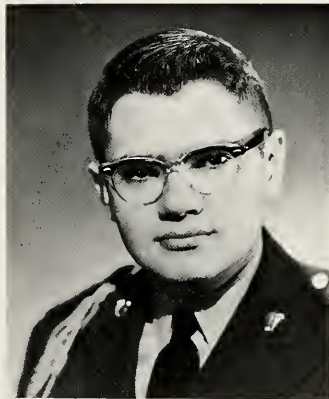

In addition to the vigorous training that the cadets receive, they have some fun also. A full dress military ball is held in the spring. In the second semester sophomore girls are nominated by the cadets to become Honorary Cadets. The final selection of an Honorary Cadet is based upon her scholastic achievement and interest.

Well, I finally finished my term paper for Mr. Coley.

JUNIOR ANTICS

Slip this under your paper and she'll never know it.

The makings of a juvenile delinquent.

"Hi Fans!"

Garbage grinding . . .

. . . soothes tired tonsils.

"Oh goody, here comes a man!"

"We have to find it! My insurance ran out yesterday."

D.A.R. Award

Sherry Adam

Sherry will be a girl long remembered for her personal warmth and friendliness to the students and faculty of South High. She represented the student body as Head Girl and Junior Representative and served as a member of sophomore class council. Actively participating in Pep Club, Sherry was a "Pom-Pom" girl in her Junior year. She has contributed her time and efforts toward Aquads, Dixieland Diplomats, I.R.C., and Jr. Red Cross.

Teachers and students who have known Sherry as a friend and leader recognize her as a deserving recipient of the D.A.R. Award.

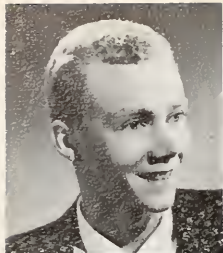

Kiwanis Award

Ken Sevcik

Nominated by his fellow classmates, Ken was selected Outstanding Senior Boy by a group of Kiwanians for his distinguished performance in academics, sports and community service. During the summer between his junior and senior year, Ken was a delegate to Boys' State. He ably served as president of Key Club and has been an active participant in "S" Club, Hi-Y, Concert Choir, and Triple S. Not only has Ken been outstanding in academics, but he has also displayed his athletic ability by participation in varsity football, basketball, and baseball. His sincerity and willingness to work have won him many friends.

SENIOR MEMORIES

We quickly became adjusted to our new surroundings at South. The sophomore class of 1959 was recognized as outstanding by upperclassmen in all the events of the school year. Planning, cooperation and leadership by our class sponsors and newly elected council made each activity a successful and enjoyable one. At the end of our first enthusiastic year, every sophomore looked forward to becoming a member of the junior class and anticipated carrying on the traditions of South High School.

Lee Prater, one example of our very talented class, performed for assemblies and the all-school show, "Have Fun Will Travel."

Sharon Jones and Sue Elson were the sophomore princesses for our Carol Patton, "Queen of Color Day 1960."

Our sophomore sponsors, Miss Armstrong and Mr. Carlson, were always willing to lend a hand when work was to be done for the Class of '62.

Our class officers, Ron Tracey, as Sophomore Class President, serving with Carol Langsam and Sandy Koop, showed responsibility and leadership during our first year.

The designing and styling of '62 class rings were big projects for Sophomore Council.

The charming royalty of our Junior Prom, "Snowflake Fantasy," were Kay Ashton, Kathy Kusel, and Ruth Ann Gerber.

After our first year of recognition at South, we returned to participate in another round of Southern activities. Keeping our academic records high, we worked hard on such projects as the junior prom, "Snowflake Fantasy," and the all-school show, "An Enchanted Evening with Oscar Hammerstein." Our junior year was filled with memories that will never be forgotten.

Randy Christman, junior class president, Kathy Knight and Sally Lentz led our class ably. Progress and success were their goals.

At the first of our junior year, we were introduced to our new principal, Dr. Anderson, who took over the office of another great man, Mr. Joseph Lort.

Color Day Princesses Linda Gault and Nancy Manley shared in the honors of the second Color Day Queen, Dorthy Puckett.

Presiding over Student Council during our senior year were Ron Tracey, Sherry Adam, Don Lundquist, and Gretchen Swan. They ably guided many school activities.

Our senior class officers, Bob Bishop, Sue Elson and Sandy Koop, led our class toward many goals and some fine achievements.

Representatives from the senior class to the Student Council were Rod Weidman, Pat Hewins, Bill Hennigar and Suzy Price.

Mr. Jenni and Miss Armstrong, the senior class sponsors, enthusiastically and willingly guided the Class of '62.

Jim Plank, South exchange student to Austria during the fall semester, was greeted at South by Alisnar Akbar, an exchange student from Indonesia.

Leading the "Pom Pom" Girls through their dances this year were seniors Ann Todd, Sharon Connelly and Cathi Close.

Outstanding girls are chosen during their sophomore year to be R.O.T.C. Honorary Cadets. The senior Honorary Cadets who have capably served this year are: Bonnie Smith, Travis Finney, Dorothy Puckett, Jean Petersen, Carol Jenkins and not shown, Mary Swaggart and Sharon Smith.

The Can-Can dance line of the senior girls was one of the main attractions at the All-School Show, "South Terrific."

South's Girls' State Representatives were Carol Jenkins and Mary Swaggart. During the week of the conference, they attended panels, discussions and assemblies.

Boys' Staters who represented South this year were Rod Weidman, Norm Hinman, Ray Oliver, Ray Carey, Dave Faris, Ken Sevcik and Arnie Peterson (not shown).

We of the Class of 1962 have left our marks at South High School during the three fleeting years that we have spent here. All of the three will be remembered, but our senior year will always stand out because of the many accomplishments, activities, traditions and experiences that we have shared. Each of us will go our own way from South carrying a spark of love and devotion to the school, to the faculty and to the many friends that we made. These preceding pictures have captured a few small and treasured memories of our senior year at South.

Vitality and eagerness in our cheerleaders gave assurance to our athletic teams and stimulated school spirit. These animated seniors were Sue Elson, Nancy McCracken, Shan Burdick, Ken Goff, Karla Magnuson and Terry Pershing (not shown).

THE JOHNNY REB STAFF

It's been fun knowing you at South and being in your classes. You should be great in writing next year.
Star Smith

Hal,
It's been lots of fun
being in Biology with you & I hope you have good luck in all the things
the future holds.
